Dear

Thank you for your application for a Developing Country Stipend to attend the 13th Cochrane Colloquium in Melbourne in October 2005.

I regret to inform you that your application for a stipend to attend the Colloquium has not been successful.

The Developing Country Stipend Committee received a record number of applications, many of which were very strong, and it was a difficult decision to allocate our limited funds. The evaluation involved several criteria, including your achievements as a contributor to The Cochrane Collaboration, and the support from independent Cochrane entities.

Although you were not successful this year, I encourage you to continue contributing to The Cochrane Collaboration, and wish you luck in obtaining the necessary funding to attend the Colloquium in Melbourne from an alternative source.

We would be happy to consider your application for a Developing Country Stipend next year.

Yours sincerely

Ratana Panpanich and Pisake Lumbiganon
